Hi Axel,

I have nothing in writing from the NWB confirming which criteria are acceptable for this licence; none are specifically provided in the water licence. As such, I must default to the most stringent standard we have available. Previous pre-discharge results from Nunatta this summer have met this criteria. Provided your (re)sample results meet the criteria you will be able to discharge; I look forward to reviewing when you have them available.

Thank you,
Melissa

Thank you for that. I'm confused, I thought if we met the Canadian Drinking Water Standards we were OK to discharge. As you know the water would be discharged into the adjacent property, the old metal dump.
We have restarted the filtering process and we let it run for another couple of days. Trust this is OK.

Andrew
Attached hereto are the test results of some water we are requesting your approval to discharge. The water will be discharged through a carbon filter.
