Hi Robin,

I called Nicole's line this morning and was given to understand that Nicole is no longer the person I should contact in this matter.

To make a long story short, Vaaldiam Resources Ltd. (now amalgamated into Vaaldiam Mining Inc.) had an option to work with Ashton Mining on a project in the Coronation Gulf in Nunavut back in 2006. Early 2007, Vaaldiam decided they would not pursue the project and informed Ashton Mining of the decision and worked with Ashton to hand over all responsibilities. It is Vaaldiam's understanding that Ashton worked briefly on it and then filed closure reports for the project. Unfortunately, it was during the time of the Stornoway/Ashton takeover and in the transition from Ashton to Stornoway, a water license was not transferred back to Stornoway.

Earlier this year, I received a call from the Nunavut Water Board notifying me that the licence is still in our name and that water use fees from 2007 to 2010, amounting to $120 are still outstanding. I spoke with Nicole in June and she sent over to the Water Board the project closure report which had already been filed and requested that the Water Board close the file on the licence. The attached email that came back last week is self-explanatory.

I will provide Phyllis with the letter authorizing Stornoway to finalize closure as suggested by Phyllis. Since Nicole is no longer there, can I ask them to use you as the Stornoway contact? Also, as Vaaldiam had already given notice to Ashton to terminate their involvement, and therefore has nothing to do with the project, can you please provide the $120 to the Nunavut Water Board for the 2007 to 2010 user fees?

I am not sure if Nicole is still checking the Stornoway email, but I have copied her in case she is still assisting Stornoway in transition.

Please do not hesitate to contact the undersigned should you require further information.

Thanks. We will do that.
Nicole, is that alright with you?

Further to my recent email of today's date, if Vaaldiam Resources Inc. is willing to provide our office with a letter authorizing Stornoway to act on their behalf to finalize closure of the project and the fees are paid, the Nunavut Water Board is acceptable to that approach.
