Ennadai Lake Exploration Adventure

We have a new lodge located on Lake Ennadai (Latitude 60° 45.9" N, Longitude 101° 41.7' W) in southern Nunavut. A former fishing lodge; the comfortable 5000 square foot lodge is fully equipped with amenities and a 3,000 foot airstrip. The lodge is located on the tree line and in the path of one of the great caribou migrations. A herd of nearly 350,000 animals, nearly 10,000 animals migrate past the lodge twice a year. The immediate vicinity if the lodge holds an impressive concentration of wildlife; caribou, wolves, moose, muskox, grizzly bears, black bears, wolverine and many birds, including eagles. The tundra is lush, colorful and wonderful. We've been fortunate to see impressive northern lights as well!

Nansen and Sven have been there since mid-April. Their task has been to explore the area, see what activities are possible and to find the wildlife. They have witnessed the caribou migration, seen wolves, wolf cubs, barren-land grizzly bears, black bears, wolverines and caught some big fish. You can see their photographs on Flickr at http://arcticwatch.us1.list-manage.com/track/click?u=24abf468fe6595e57038ff680&id=6cfb6ddbf5&e=eb45e06101

This summer the Arctic Watch team will go to Ennadai after Arctic Watch closes. We are planning an exploratory week August 23 to 31. The objective is to witness the caribou migration, as the animals go south, find wolves, walk on the eskers, see the northern lights, fish for lake trout, arctic grayling, northern pike and visit the area by boat.

Access is from Saskatoon to Stoney Rapids, Saskatchewan. Then a seventy minute twin otter flight to Ennadai. The cost is $2900.00 per person from Stoney Rapids, Saskatoon.

We have four spaces remaining. Call or email for more details.

Dates: August 23 to 31, 2012
Cost: $2900.00 from Stoney Rapids, Saskatchewan
