Hi Karén,

Thank you very much for the information and direction concerning the requirements for applying for a quarry permit. I will contact AANDC and I will also investigate further to see if there will be any requirements for NWB approvals based on your email below.

Many thanks,

Subject: 3BC-EUR1116 Questions about Quarrying

Hi Carl,

With respect to your questions about quarrying at Eureka Station site: the Permit for Quarrying in Nunavut is issued by Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada (AANDC).

You may also need the NWB approval through an amendment to the Licence if water use and waste disposal into water is involved (gravel washing, pit dewatering, construction affecting watercourses like installation of bridges or culverts etc.). If this is the case an amendment application should be submitted to the Board.
If additional water use or waste disposal into water will not likely be involved with the quarrying operations you may not need a NWB approval through the Licence amendment.
At any case you should follow the Northern Land Use Guidelines for Pits and Quarries (see attached), and apply for a Quarry permit to AANDC.

I hope this information helps.
