Hi Paul,

We're almost there!

Can you let the beneficiary know of the below? Scotiabank understands that the old and new beneficiary are the same (just an updated name/address). They only need the documentation in their files to show the completion of the change of the beneficiary's name.

Regards,

Phil

Good morning Phil,

The amendment was issued yesterday, and has been sent out by registered express mail via Canada Post, as there is only PO Box available in the beneficiary's address.

As we discussed, this amendment is subject to the beneficiary's consent. Therefore, we will need the old beneficiary to sign back their acceptance, for which we have enclosed an extra copy (with a Stamp on it), and to courier the original signed copy to us at the below address. Kindly arrange the transfer of the original documents of the LC and its all amendments to the new beneficiary's files. Additionally, for us to complete the transaction, we will also require the new beneficiary send us a signed letter, in their letter head, addressed to Scotiabank, indicating the original documents have been received from the old beneficiary (please indicate the old beneficiary's name and LC reference number in the letter).
