Hi Andrew:

The Nunavut Water Board (NWB or Board) has conducted a preliminary review of the above-mentioned application, which the Board received on March 24, 2014.

The review determined that the application is mostly complete; however, before the Board could proceed to the next stage(s) of the licensing process, the NWB requests that the following information be provided at your earliest convenience:

1. Anticipated number of drill that to be used and a complete break-down of the total volume of water being requested under the licence amendment. Block 13 of the amendment application, indicates that 98.2 cubic metres/day of water is required for each drill and 2.5 cubic metres/day for camp use.
2. Confirmation, as provided by the Nunavut Impact Review Board (NIRB), on whether the screening decision report dated March 22, 2012 would apply to the amendment currently being requested.
3. Confirmation, as provided by the Nunavut Planning Commission (NPC), on whether the conformity determination dated April 29, 2008 would apply to the amendment application that is currently before the Board.

If you have any questions in the interim, please contact me at your earliest convenience.

Regards,

Sean
