General Background Information on the Project (*optional):

In 2007, the Prime Minister announced plans to increase Canadian military presence in Canadian Arctic waters. This increased presence is associated with patrolling of naval vessels in Arctic waters during the navigable season, as well as a deep-water naval facility to support the patrol vessels. The Nanisivik Naval Facility will serve primarily as a deep-water refuelling and resupply station to serve the Arctic Offshore Patrol Ships (AOPS), Canadian Coast Guard and other government ships during the navigable season in the Northwest Passage (i.e., July to October). The Nanisivik Naval Facility may also serve to receive, marshal, hold and distribute cargo and goods from commercial vessels for the Government of Canada.
