Hello there

I hope this finds you well. We hope to be filming calving caribou for the BBC in Kivalliq-owned land near Rankin Inlet. We will be a very small (2-3 man) run camp and will only be using water according to our daily needs – just enough for cooking and washing. We may wish to access a freshwater source near to the camp to drink and wash from. We have outlined in our NIRB, NPC, GN, KIA permit applications that we will take all grey water and sewage waste back with us to Rankin, and that no chemicals or contaminants at all will be used in the camp near water sources. Do you think we should apply for NWB use-of-water-without-a-permit authorisation or would NWB be happy for us to proceed on this two-man subsistence basis?

With kind regards
