8. DESCRIPTION OF UNDERTAKING AND EQUIPMENT USED – Provide a brief description of the undertaking including a description of any equipment that will be used in using water or depositing waste.

The 2026 FMARS field season will continue the approved environmental and astrobiological research program at the Flashline Mars Arctic Research Station on Devon Island. The work includes low-impact water and snow sampling, pH/conductivity screening, microbial and particulate sampling, nanoplastics sampling, passive and active radiation monitoring, radon/methane observations, permafrost and meltwater runoff monitoring, drone mapping of the crater area, and initial non-invasive observation of the gossan area. Water will be collected from a nearby Haughton River tributary using certified potable-water containers. No structure will be placed in a watercourse, no watercourse will be trained, and no waste will be deposited to surface water. Human waste will be incinerated/managed on site. Greywater will be minimized, screened/filtered where practical, and discharged only to a designated sump or land-disposal area away from water in accordance with NWB conditions. Equipment may include certified water containers, hand tools, pH/conductivity meters, sterile sample bottles, passive dosimeters, Radiacode or similar portable radiation monitors, radon/methane sensors, field laptops, small drones for mapping, GPS units, radios/satellite communications, and standard camp support equipment.
