

NWB Tools

Phyllis Beaulieu <phyllis.beaulieu@nwb-oen.ca>

Sylvia Grinnell Water

1 message

Ambrose Livingstone <lstone@qiniq.com>

Thu, Sep 10, 2015 at 1:55 PM

To: phyllis.beaulieu@nwb-oen.ca

Hi Phyllis, I found your contact info on line. I am representing a group of investors who were recently granted a permit to construct a brewery in Iqaluit. As part of our business plan we are exploring the possibility of using the water from the Sylvia Grinnell River in Iqaluit as a source of water for products.

As I read online, a license is not required if the useage is less than 50m3 of water per day. However there are certain information that will need to be provided in order for the NWB to consider the application.

At this time we envision using about 3m3 of water per day on average. The river would be accessed by truck and the water pumped into storage tanks for removal to the brewery, perhaps once or twice a month.

Can you tell me how we go about formally making the application and what information will need to be provided.

We are in no rush for this but thought we could at least determine what is required on our end.

Ambrose Livingstone
V/President Nunavut Brewing Company Ltd.
Iqaluit